

Little Signs

Signing Games

Learning sign language can be fun for both you and your child by making games that require signs. By playing signing games with your child it can help to teach new signs, reinforce signs previously learned, and allow your child to have fun while bonding with you.

Some games that you may want to try could include placing 3-5 items on a table. Make the sign for one of the objects and have your child find it. Another game could include signing an animal and having your child make the animal noise. Lastly, while reading you and your child can pick out objectives and practice the sign. There are many other games to play with your child or you can become creative and make your own!

May Sign List- Counting

